

100 JURYMEN
DISMISSEDAnd Second Venire Called in Thaw Case

OPENING THIS FORENOON

Names of First Venire Had Been Published by Mistake Last Friday—
Evelyn Thaw May Be Barred as a Witness.

New York, Jan. 6.—One hundred talesmen of a specially selected panel of 300 appeared in the criminal branch of the Supreme court this morning to qualify to sit in the second trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White. Owing to the fact that Justice Dowling had to charge the January grand jury and dispose of certain routine court duties, the actual trial of Thaw did not begin at promptly as had been expected. Unless something unforeseen develops, such as a sudden application for an insanity commission, illness of the defendant or counsel, there is no prospect of a short trial. The attorneys hope to complete the jury in a fortnight.

The first venire of 100 jurymen was dismissed at the opening of court because their names had, through an error, been published Friday. The second list was immediately summoned and they began arriving soon after the first batch scattered.

The case was called at 11:37. The court room was cleared and the doors were opened for those concerned in the case. It was agreed that Littleton, senior counsel for Thaw, could interpose with his plea of not guilty, the plea that the defendant was insane at the time his alleged crime was committed. As Thaw entered the court room, his wife, Mrs. Carnegie and Joseph Thaw, also came in. Evelyn was dressed much as at the first trial, her general appearance being that of a girl in her teens.

It is said that Evelyn Thaw, wife of the respondent, may be barred from testifying this time. She was allowed to testify at the first trial, upon the theory that it was her story, told to Thaw in Paris in 1903, two years before their marriage, that planted the seeds of temporary insanity in his brain. The prosecution was not allowed to contest the truth or falsity of the story, the court ruling that regardless of its truth the issue had to do solely with the effect upon the defendant's mind. Even cross-examination was allowed only on the ground of testing the credibility of the witness in a general way.

District Attorney Jerome's course as regards the all-important testimony of young Mrs. Thaw will be watched with the keenest interest. If her story is deemed admissible by Justice Dowling, it is declared that the cross-examination to which she will be subjected will be far more severe than that of the first one. District Attorney Garvan spent several months abroad last summer and covered much of the ground included in the travels of Harry Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit during the two trips abroad which preceded their marriage, and it is said Mr. Jerome will be able to confront her with incidents of the European trips not hinted at during the first hearing.

Mr. Jerome will fight for a reversal of the rules laid down at the first trial regarding the testimony of the experts who declared that Thaw was insane at the time he committed the crime. He has two months thereafter. Mr. Jerome sought to cross-examine them as to subsequent visits in his attempt to show that Thaw, if insane when he killed Stanford White, had continued insane ever since. Justice Fitzgerald would not permit any question as to mental visits, as those mentioned in the direct examination.

HUNT ACCOMPLICE
IN HARRISON MURDER

Authorities Think That There Must Have Been Two Persons to Have Moved the Woman's Body.

Harrison, N. J., Jan. 6.—If Theodore Whitmore killed his wife and disposed of her body in the Passaic river swamp on Christmas night, it seems certain that he had an accomplice, and the police to-day are bending every effort to find that person. Mrs. Whitmore was a heavy woman and it would have been a physical impossibility for the accused man to have taken the body to the spot, where it was found, alone. Prosecutor Vickers of Hudson county has sent broadcast a description of Whitmore in the hope of tracing him and his accomplice through Christmas and Christmas night.

POSTMASTER GENERAL'S REPORT.

A Gain of More Than $15,000,000 in Revenues During Year.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The annual report of First Assistant Postmaster General Frank B. Hitchcock for the fiscal year was made public yesterday. The revenues collected through the post office during the fiscal year 1906, he says, amounted to about $168,000,000, a gain of more than $15,000,000, and the report says that this growth was continued in 1907, when the aggregate reached $183,000,000. In order to meet this continuous growth of his bureau Mr. Hitchcock makes a plea for larger appropriations.

Will of Baroness Rothchild.

Paris, Jan. 6.—The will of Baroness Adolphe de Rothchild, who died Nov. 15 last, donates over $1,000,000 to charity, $400,000 being given specifically for the relief of Israelites, and the remainder to general charitable institutions.

BOSTON'S CITY CLERK
DIED YESTERDAY

Edward J. Donovan Was Only Saturday
Renominated by Democratic Aldermen—Was Conscious to the Last.

Boston, Jan. 6.—City Clerk Edward J. Donovan died at his home, Harvard avenue, Brighton, at 10:20 o'clock yesterday morning. At his bedside were his wife, his five children, and William F. Donovan, a brother. Mr. Donovan was conscious up to the last and bade good-bye to his family. Death was caused by heart failure.

Mr. Donovan had been ill for 12 weeks, first suffering with bronchitis, which left his heart affected. He was able to go to his office and on until five weeks ago, when he was obliged to take to his bed.

The Rev. Fr. John P. Kelleher of St. Anthony's church, Allston, who had been with Mr. Donovan nearly every day of his illness, was with the deceased until late Saturday night, and administered the last rites of the church.

Archbishop O'Connell, who married Mr. and Mrs. Donovan 17 years ago, while he was a curate at St. Joseph's church in the West end, spent the greater part of Saturday morning at the bedside of the dying man, and the visit of the archbishop seemed to cheer him greatly, but for several days Mr. Donovan had become reconciled to the fact that the end was near.

Only Saturday the Democratic aldermen passed a vote for the renomination of Mr. Donovan as city clerk, and the Democratic members of the common council did the same last Tuesday night, while he was also named at the Republican caucus of the common council on Wednesday.

Mr. Donovan is survived by a widow and five children, Frances, 16; Edward J., Jr., 14; Grace, 11; Lawrence, 8; and Paul, 2 years old. He also leaves a brother, William F. Donovan, and three sisters, Nellie, Emily and Minnie, all of Boston.

ROOSEVELT CONDEMNS
BROWNSON'S ACT

Declares It Unseemly and Improper, in a Letter Which Was Made Public
Yesterday.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—President Roosevelt's attitude on the question of the command of hospital ships in the navy, which resulted in the resignation of Rear-admiral William H. Brownson and, incidentally, some caustic remarks on that incident and the controversies among the naval officers and their advocates as to details of naval construction and methods of training, were made known yesterday when Secretary McCall gave to the press two letters from the president addressed to him on the subject.

President Roosevelt condemns in unmeasured terms the act of Admiral Brownson, declaring it to be unseemly and improper. "There is no room for difference of opinion as to the gross impropriety of the admiral's conduct in resigning sooner than carry out the orders of his superior officers in such a manner."

Regarding the controversies in the navy, the president admits there always are and always will be defects to correct, both in the construction of ships, in the organization of the department and in the actual drill of the fleet. It is, he says, that these defects are pointed out, but it is also well that they should be pointed out without hysterical exaggeration or malicious misrepresentation. Because of "so much misrepresentation and exaggeration," the president has asked Secretary McCall for a statement as to the exact facts concerning which there have been disputes.

TWO FIREMEN HURT.

Pinned Beneath Fallen Floor at $50,000
Utica Blaze.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Fire early Sunday destroyed several buildings in the business section of this city, including the original St. John's church on Bleeker street, a structure of famed history. It was the first church destroyed to Roman Catholic worship between Albany and Buffalo, and was built nearly 100 years ago.

Of late years the old edifice has been occupied for commercial purposes. One section was used as a paint store and another part as a carpenter shop. While firemen were engaged in fighting the blaze, an upper floor dropped on them, pinning them in the debris. Two of their number, Edward Duffy and William Garvey, were extricated in an unconscious condition after two hours' work by their comrades. The injured men are now in a hospital. Duffy's condition is extremely critical. The total damage will approximate $50,000.

FACTORY FIRE IN WOBURN.

Loss Yesterday Was $80,000, Covered by Insurance.

Woburn, Mass., Jan. 6.—The large factory of the E. Cunningham Leather company of Fowle street was destroyed by fire yesterday, causing a loss of $80,000, which is covered by insurance. Some of the machinery was saved, but the larger portion was ruined, as was also the large stock of hides in the vault and leather in its various stages of manufacture. To company gave employment to seventy-five hands and was rushed with orders.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The entire building was a mass of flames when the firemen reached the scene.

Three Drowned at Jamaica.

New York, Jan. 6.—The first day of skating was marred by the drowning of two young boys and a man who tried to save them at Jamaica, L. I., yesterday. Francis Stecher, aged 19 years, and his brother, William, 5 years younger, who lived in Jamaica, ventured on the ice which formed on Tappan pond near Black Stump road during the cold snap Saturday night. The thin ice gave way and the brothers sank beneath the surface.

John Piercey of Richmond Hill hurried to the bank where the boys disappeared to render assistance, but the ice gave way beneath him and he also was drowned. The bodies of all three victims were recovered.

"BLUE" SUNDAY
IN RUTLANDCity Shut Tighter Than For Many Years

IS RESULT OF AGITATION

Instituted by the Clergy and Woman's Club—Some Merchants Threaten to Start an Argument
Over It.

Rutland, Jan. 6.—When Rutland citizens strolled down town Sunday morning they were treated to a surprise. Carrying out an order of Mayor L. Richmond, chief of police E. S. Whitaker had caused an enforcement of the old "blue law," such as had not been experienced here in years.

Hundreds who had not put in a stock of tobacco were obliged to go without or borrow, fruit and candy stores were closed, and only the creameries and drug stores were doing business.

It is understood that the order means permanent "blue" Sundays for this city. It results from a campaign by the clergy and the Rutland's Woman's club.

That a controversy will come seems assured by statements from several business men.

DR. JACKSON'S SUCCESSOR.

As Professor of Physiology at University of Vermont Medical College.

Burlington, Jan. 6.—The trustees of the university of Vermont have arranged for a successor to the late Dr. J. Henry Jackson of Barre, for many years professor of physiology in the college of medicine of the institution. Dr. Jackson's successor is Prof. John W. Scane of McGill university, Montreal.

Dr. Scane graduated from McGill in 1893. He has since served in John Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, the Montreal General hospital and the Royal Victoria hospital, Montreal. In the winter of 1898-99 he spent four months in research in Germany. He is now doing work in physiology and physiological therapeutics in McGill and will continue that work in connection with his duties at Vermont.

Dr. Scane will commence his work here tomorrow. He comes with high recommendations as a teacher both in the popular instructors at McGill. His predecessor, Dr. Jackson, who had held the chair of physiology since 1882 graduated from the medical department of the university of Vermont in 1885.

CAUGHT AFTER LONG HUNT.

Man Wanted in Two Murder Cases Pursued
13 Months.

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 6.—After 13 months' search, leading across the continent, two New York detectives at dawn yesterday captured at pistol point Amelio Grandioli of Brooklyn, said to be wanted for two murders, the last crime being the shooting of his nephew, Francesco Mazzoli, of Coney Island, after "Black Hand" plotting, Dec. 12, 1906. Grandioli was heavily armed and was faced by five detectives as he was leaving his lodging house apartments with his wife. He was covered, disarmed and handcuffed while his wife fought the officers and some Miss Zarelli, who turned toward her, blood streaming from her breast. The woman was hurried to a nearby drug store and died before a doctor could reach her.

WIFE MURDERER.

Tried to Kill Himself at Easton, Pa.,
Yesterday.

Easton, Pa., Jan. 6.—Frank Smith, son of City Controller Chester Smith, yesterday murdered his wife and then attempted to commit suicide. Smith and his wife had been separated for some time. Yesterday morning the husband forced an entrance to the house occupied by his wife and her sister, stole to the room occupied by the two women and plunged a carving knife into his wife's heart. Going to his father's residence, Smith recited the details of the crime, and then attempted to kill himself by gashing his throat and abdomen.

It is believed Smith will recover.

TO RUSH PROSECUTION.

Result of Conference of Those Concerned in Druce Action.

London, Jan. 6.—At a conference yesterday of the lawyers and others interested in the claim of George Hollamby Druce of Portland, it was decided after referring to the reports of doctor and surgeons who attended the examination of the Druce coffin on behalf of the claimant, to continue the prosecution of Herbert Druce for perjury when the case comes up in the police court on Jan. 6.

While no statement was given out, it is understood that the prosecution will insist that the burden of proving that T. C. Druce lies with the defense.

RUNAWAY BOYS
LANDED IN NORTHFIELD

Three From West Medford, Mass.,
Thought They Were in Northfield,
Mass.—Parents Refused to Send Money to Help Them Back.

Northfield, Jan. 6.—On Wednesday morning three young boys, about fifteen years old, walked into town from Roxbury and applied to the police for food and shelter. They were all from West Medford, Mass., and supposed that they were in the town of Northfield, Mass., where they were going to get work. They took a freight train out of Boston and did not know that they were on the wrong road until they arrived in Roxbury the following morning.

Officer Plunkett gave them some dinner and held them at the police station, and endeavored to reach the parents of the youths by wire. It was not until the next morning after the boys were allowed to go, that word came from the parents of the two boys. The letters did not contain money for their safe return home as was requested, but, instead, told that the boys were in the habit of running away and that they would have to get back as best they could. The boys gave their names as William, Chester Robinson and Arthur Foote.

CATHOLIC CENSUS
SHOWS 127,613 IN N. H.

Manchester Has Largest Parish in State,
9,983 French Speaking
Members.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 6.—Bishop George A. Guerin, at the masses at the cathedral yesterday, announced the figures of the census of the Catholics of New Hampshire recently taken and made the annual report of the financial condition of the parish.

He said that the census shows 127,613 Catholics in the state, of which number 39,497 are located in Manchester. St. Marie parish in Manchester, comprising 9,983 French-speaking Catholics, is the largest in the state. There are seven other parishes in the city, and two of these are also French Canadian, St. Joseph and St. Mary's.

Speaking of the financial condition of the parish, Bishop Guerin said that there is a balance of nearly $800, that amount having been made possible by money derived from weddings, baptisms and his own salary, which he had turned over to the church. During the past year there has been 55 marriages performed in the parish and 178 baptisms.

He spoke at length on temperance and mixed marriages, and announced that all intentions of marriage must be published three times, unless for some special and valid reason. All marriages must be performed in the morning, when Catholics are the contracting parties, and mass must be celebrated in connection therewith. He urged parents to see to it that their children are kept off the streets at night.

The woman was hurried to a nearby drug store and died before a doctor could reach her.

WHERE IS ED. MILLNER?

His Wife Wants to Know, and Other People Are Curious.

Claremont, N. H., Jan. 6.—Ed. Miller, Cornish Flat left for an unknown place and his wife is greatly concerned over his disappearance. She can offer no explanation for his going.

According to the story, Miller was to meet his wife and several children at his parents' home Christmas day, but his passing did not bring him. Getting concerned as to what happened to him, he began an inquiry, and learned that he had driven his team, which belonged to a Mrs. Lawrence of Lebanon, to Huntley's stable in this town, and then noticed that he was not noticed about town afterwards.

The horse has been sent to Lebanon by Mr. Huntley and Mrs. Miller and her children are still at her home awaiting his arrival. Mrs. Miller is reported as having said that she feared that Ed would never come back.

SCHOOL DOME BLOWN OFF.

Workmen Have Perilous Time Repairing
Damage at Lawrence.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 6.—A part of the dome of the Lawrence high school was blown from the rest of the structure in the high wind yesterday afternoon and hung over the railing, threatening every instant to fall to the street, until a force of men confined it with ropes, after a half hour's perilous work.

In order to fasten the side of the dome, which was blown partially off, a workman was lowered over the railing and worked on the swinging structure while others held him from above.

The dome was designed to be used for classes in astronomy, and the part that was blown away was on the side where an aperture had been left for the telescope.

THOSE HORSE SHEDS.

Land Owner and Shed Owners Busy
Breaking Open and Repairing Gate.

Those horse shed owners who wanted to use their sheds in the rear of the Methodist church Saturday afternoon broke open the restraining gate and used them. The gate is up again to-day. That constitutes the status of the so-called "horse shed war," between H. F. Cutler and the owners of the 19 sheds which are located on land sold to the Congregational church to Mr. Cutler nearly a year ago.

One of the shed owners made a statement of their side of the case, as follows, to-day:

"In Saturday's Times was an article headed 'Horse shed war,' which, I think, was just a little colored and I think might be just a little misleading. Now for a statement of facts: Soon after the present Congregational church was built, there was placed a row of horse sheds on both sides of the church and across the back, and I think they were all owned by members of the Congregational society. The owners paid a certain sum of money and had a deed of the shed and a right on the ground.

"The ground was too small; the sheds were too near the church. In 1885 the shed owners were asked to move their sheds to the back end of the parsonage ground, where they could have plenty of room, and with the understanding that they would have the same right that they had been having. They without opposition moved their sheds over where they now stand and fitted them up. It was to a considerable expense, as they were badly wrecked in moving.

"As time went on, several of these sheds were handed down from father to son, and several had gone into other hands that were not paying anything to support the Congregational church. They thought they could not afford to let such people occupy the ground for nothing, so to make it satisfactory, the shed owners with one exception agreed to pay $5 a year to the Congregational church. The church was receiving $90 a year from the shed owners.

"In 1907 the annual meeting of the church voted to sell all the church property except the church. In June, 1907, they sold and deeded, subject to present encumbrance, all the right and title they had to H. F. Cutler. Mr. Cutler immediately declared war on the shed owners by sending each a letter, telling them what they must do and what they must not do, and among them, ordered them to get their sheds off before Jan. 1, 1908. The shed owners paid no attention to his orders. Soon after Jan. 1, 1908, Mr. Cutler sent each shed owner a bill for rent of ground from June to January, some for $5 and some for $10, and put up a gate across the driveway and locked it up.

"There are 19 sheds in all; several are owned by men that attend and pay for the support of the Congregational church and want their sheds to use on Sunday. Now these shed owners don't want war, and don't want to pay, but they will be a hard crowd to bluff.

"As to the meeting of the shed owners on Saturday, all that is publicly known is that they cleared away the gate and occupied the sheds as usual."

There was quite a strong public opinion in the city against the sheds, and notices were posted prohibiting the hitching of horses on the ground.

SIXTY CORPORATIONS.

Capital Stock of New Companies Aggregates $2,455,300.

The files in the office of the secretary of state show that during 1907, sixty corporations filed with the secretary of state articles of incorporation. Of these six were telephone or telegraph companies, 13 were granite or marble companies, and the others were of miscellaneous character. The capital stock of these companies ranges from $500 to $250,000, and aggregates $1,455,300. The Passumpsic Telephone company of St. Johnsbury has the highest capitalization, $250,000, and the Gent
